Excerpt: . . . which were occupied when we were there. He delivered in April, 1913, medicine on over a thousand prescriptions. As to the number of converts in the past and present, we shall have to refer the inquirer to their missionary reports, but opportunity seems to be especially favorable in this field for great results. The little city of Chunju has a population of 25, 000, nearly all Koreans, a few Japanese, and no whites, except these few missionaries. It is probably the most productive agricultural district in Korea. A branch railroad is being built from Rivi. A small river flows-through the place, giving plenty of water most of the year, and the people seem more prosperous than other places which we have visited here. Once it was a walled city, but most of the wall has been torn down since Japanese occupation, the south gate being left as a picturesque reminder of the old wall. As our time is limited we very reluctantly bid goodbye, and God bless you, to our good friends, and continued our journey back to the main line of railway at Taiden, and up to the capital. SEOUL. Seoul, the most important city in Korea, has a population of 250, 000 Koreans and 50, 000 Japanese, one good wide street, running north and south, and one running east and west, the others very narrow, and squalid. An electric tram car system has been laid in the principal wide streets, and is...
